

Dear Delaware Office of Highway Safety,

Thank you for supporting the Casey Feldman Foundation by having Joel Feldman present to 14 high school students at Delaware School for the Deaf on Friday, February 23, 2024. Joel's demeanor and presentation style was well received by our students. They were extremely attentive listening/watching the interpreter while Joel shared Casey's story and facts about distracted driving. There were several impactful moments that the students shared with me the following Monday. They were shocked by the videos, which said it all. Some became emotional (me included) when Joel shared the numerous color wrist bands on both arms, indicating the number of people who have been killed by a distracted driver. We explored the EndDD.org website and were grateful for the information. Some students told me they talked to their parents about the presentation and reminded them to put the phone down while driving.

These little nuggets of information and visuals add up. Thank you for including deaf and hard of hearing drivers in your quest to educate student drivers, their families, and school staff.
